A M'KINLEY BOOM.

THE OHIO CONGRESSMAN IN THE CABINET.

BOTH BLAINE AND SHERMAN FOR HIM Blaine, Because He Likes McKinley, and

Sherman Favors It Because He Wants Sweet Revenge. Washington, December 26 .- [Special.]-Three new candidates for the speakership of the fifty-first congress are being placed in the field by their friends or by the friends of some other candidates. The movement is a very quiet one, but in at least one instance it has apparently acquired considerable strength. apparently acquired considerable strength.

The new man who seems to be the leader of the trio is Mr. Henry Cabot Lodge, of Massachusetts. Just where his strongest support comes from is rather difficult to determine at this time, but that he has strength is evident.

Betore he came to congress he was accused of tendencies that were slightly mugwumpish, but since he has been in the house he has developed into a radical of the radicals-a republican throughout. On several occasions he has taken a prominent position in party counsels, and the impression he made has been universally favorable. His speech at the New England dinner at Brooklyn has been quoted extensively, and his admirers think he has claims that should not be entirely disregarded. Some of the shrewd ones, however, think that Mr. Lodge's candidacy is inspired by one or more of the bright westerners, who think that the honor should go to their section of the United States, and who feel sure that an active canvass by the young New England-er would weaken Mr. Reed in his fight. The probabilities of a compromise candidate being the successful one are already under discussion, and in that connection the name of Mr. John M. Farquhar, of Buffalo, has been mentioned. He is regarded as being an especially good man for such a place. He is credited with possessing a great deal of good, hard, common sense, while his knowledge of the workings of the house is said to be thorough. His friends in the next house are, it is understood, numerous, and there is a powerful probability that the New York delegation will present his name in the caucus, and will urge its acceptance with all the vigor which the empire state usually displays when there is an

The third of the new candidates is Mr. Thomas M. Bayne, of Pennsylvania, but his supporters are doing very little in his behalf as yet. They are satisfied that "everything cometh to him who waits," and their cam-paign seems to be mapped out on that basis. It is understood, however, that the Pennsylvania delegation will be solid for Bayne.

A BOOM FOR M'KINLEY. The fight which is going on among the Ohio big four" bids fair to result in a general break up and a row. It is not improbable that the whole political map of the buckeye state may be so changed that it will be beyond recognition by even those who are today familiar with every path and quarter section line.

There has been a low muttering all day-a kind of an underground rumbling—that Congressman McKinley, the Napoleon of the house, is to be named for a cabinet place. It is claimed that the proposition will grow in favor if properly considered. The young Napoleon has been frequently told that he had a great future before him. It is true-or at least, his friends assert it-that he has an ambition to go into the cabinet, but has been possessed of too much modesty to push himself forward like the fire alarm, Foraker.

It is stated tonight with much emphasis that the McKinley boom is quietly being worked by Blaine and Sherman.

The Blaine people claim that the young Ohioan was always true to the plumed knight. Sherman likes McKinley, and if he can't break in himself he would rather see the young congressman in the cabinet than any of the others spoken of from Ohio.

Eliminated from the speakership contest, he would leave the field open to Reed, Butter-worth or Cannon, and his selection will, there-fore, be intensely popular among congress-men. In the cabinet McKinley would save John Sherman in the senate and thus kill off John Sherman in the senate and thus kill off Foraker for the senatorship. This is the Sherman idea, and Sherman could pay his debt to McKinley and gratify the revenge of his political friends by urging upon General Harrison the selection of his most loyal supporter at Chicago. The Ohio candidates for governor all want McKinley safely placed for four years, and Harrison men who think of a second term for their chief will think well of making McKinley a Harrison man.

COLONEL AVERY BADLY HURT. A Cab Strikes His Tricycle, Throwing Him

Out and Injuring Him Seriously. WASHINGTON, December 26.-[Special.]-Colonel I. W. Avery, of Atlanta, who, in connection with his duties as chief of one of the divisions of the treasury department, holds the position of private secretary to Sen-ator Brown, of Georgia, came near being killed last night while going the streets on an invalid's tricycle, which he has for the past two or three weeks been compelled to use, he having, not long since, had a slight attack of paralysis. While going up Pennsylvania avenue he was overtaken by a careless cab driver, who claims not to have seen the private secretary. The cab was going with some degree of rapidity when it struck the tricycle, throwing the occupant several feet into the middle of the street with greaf force, falling upon his head and face, from which he was rendered senseless, and remained in an unconscious state for several hours. CHICAGO, December 26.—A dispatch from Red Cloud, Neb., says that the closing of the doors of the Red Cloud National Bank, in that Red Cloud, Neb., says that the closing of the doors of the Red Cloud National Bank, in that city, caused great excitement among the peopie. It seems that the bank has been financially troubled for some weeks. The principal ownership of the bank was recently changed, and an attempt was made to create a run on the bank, and had it not been for private aid it would have had to close its doors the next day after the change had taken place. This alone has been the means of injury to the concern, but everything seemed to be moving along nicely until Saturday evening, when the bank officials, after a hasty examination of the affairs of the bank, refused to pay their checks. This was not decided upon, however, until numerous protests of paper had been made at different points over the country. The bank paid checks and received money up to 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon. As nearly as can be learned the bank owes its depositors about $20,000, and it is understood that they have other liabilities amounting to something like $50,000, but it is impossible to get hold of the facts, as National Bank Examiner Griffith is now in charge of the concern. It is reported that he has found the assets to be largely in excess of the liabilities, and advises the officials to open up the bank was capitalized for $50,000. GENERAL STANLEY UNDER ARREST. But the Sheriff Refuses to Recognize the Warrant-Cause of the Trouble-

To Prosecute the Sheriff.

WASHINGTON, December 26,-The war department has received no additional particulars oncerning the arrest of General Stanley, mmanding the department of Texas, and has issued no instructions to him in regard to his future action. He has, it is explained, full discretion is the matter of the taking posses-sion of the property and can order troops to Austin for that purpose if he deems it neces-sary. The question of his defence before civil courts has been referred to the attorney-general for such action as he may think proper. The trouble grows out of the attempt of private parties to squat upon the old arsenal property which has recently been donated by congress to the city of Austin for public school purposes. In the interval between the relinquish-ment by the government of property and its reception by the school board, the premises were squatted upon by a man named Snyder. The school board then applied to General Stanley to put them in possession. General Stanley and his aide went to Austin Monday for this purpose; but he no sooner reached the ground in company with representatives of the school board than a constable, armed with a warrant from Justice Stuart's court, arrested General Stanley and aide for an alleged attempt to commit an assault on Snyder. They quietly submitted and were carried before Justice Stewart, who bound them over in $500 to keep the peace. Stanley refused to give bond, and said he would go to jail first. The constable proceeded to take him to that institution and arrived at the door of the prison. Sheriff White asked General Stanly if he had authority from the government to transfer the property in question. The general said he had and produced his orders. The sheriff then said he would not recognize the order of commitment from PHILADELPHIA, December 26.—A party of boys, while playing in East Fairmount park today, in the vicinity of the new city reservoir, found two bundles in a section of new thirty-six inch water main stored there. For curiosity's sake one of the boys cut the string of one of the bundles, and was horrified when a human head rolled out. Between them the bundles contained the body of a man, cut in pieces. The head was crushed, and everything indicates another mysterious murder. Nothing was found to identify the remains or give a clew to the murderers.

ings Burned.

MARBLEHEAD, Mass., December 25.—Last night's fire was first discovered in the housefurnishing store of D. B. H. Fowers, on Pleasant street, at about 10 o'clock. The direct cause of the fire is not known. The first warning was announced by a loud explosion of naphtha in the store. The alarm was quickly run in and immediately followed by a second and third. When the firemen reached the burning building it fell with a mighty crash. It was a wooden structure and was rapidly consumed. The firemen did their best to hold the Hames in check, but their efforts amounted to nothing. The buildings surrounding the structure were nothing but mere shells and it seemed as if everywhere the sparks fell fire started. In fifteen minutes from the time the first alarm was rung in the entire business portion was a sea of flame. The fire raged fiercely and two companies were wholly of no avail to fill the task they were called upon to perform. Assistance was summoned from Lynn. Salem and Swampscott, and these towns quickly responded.

It is estimated that the loss is between $500,000 and $600,000. The entire shoe manufactuing district, the principal business of the town, was burned to the ground. Fully sixty buildings were consumed. People were frantic and rushed to and fro as though crazed. The flames spread with such rapidity that scarcely anything was saved. Tenants residing in dwelling houses were completely cleaned out, and as they stood watching their homes consumed they presented a pitiable sight. The fire, after demolishing the building in which it started, swent directly across to Rechabite hall, which is totally burned. From there it swept over to W. B. Brown's house, which marked the limit of the fire on the western side. The wind was most fortunately light, but a roaring mass of flames swept byer to F. W. & J. W. Monroe's shoe factory on the opposite side of Fleasant street.

From there it swept over to W. B. Brown's house, which marked the limit of the fire on the western side. The wind was most fortunately light, but a roaring mass of flames swept byer to F. W. & J. W. Monroe's shoe factory on the opposite side of Pleasant street. The building was a wooden structure, four stories high, and was burned to the ground. The aloe factory of Charles Reed, to the west, caught and was burned to the ground. The progress of the fire was checked upon this side at that point, but it swept, uncontrolled, to the eastward, and the flames soon reduced Pame's express office to a mass of rains. Thus it continued. Sheds, fruit stands and small tenement houses were consumed with tapidity. It seemed as if the entire town was deomed. By this time help from Salem, Lynn and Swampscott arrived, and this response put new life into the cheerless workers. The city was flooded with strangers from all the surrounding towns. The Bomb in the Malta Theater.

London, December 26.—A dispatch from Malta says that neither the duke nor dutchess of Edinburgh was present at the theater there when the attempt was made to blow up the building with a bomb. It was reported at the time that the duchess was present, and that she was the intended victim of a nihilist conspiracy. The bomb was discovered in the lobby in the rear of the stalls, by an attendant. Attached to it was a burning fuse, which an attendant promptly extinguished. The Russian consul at Malta, who was arrested for complicity in the attempted outrage, has been released. There was no evidence whatever, against him, his arrest being due to a vague suspicion that he was in some way implicated in the affair. It is now supposed that the perpetrator was actuated solely by a spirit of wanton mischief. The Bomb in the Malta Theater

THE CAUSE OF TORNADOES.

A Man From Maine Throws Light on the Subject.
Special Correspondence of the Globe-Den

Washington, December 17.—A man from Maine takes occasion to inform congress that he has located the source of waterspouts and cyclones. His name is Lieutenant Nathaniel Coffin, and he says waterspouts and tornadoes are the result of volcanic action. The seat of disturbance as shown by a man accompanying are the result of volcanic action. The seat of disturbance, as shown by a map accompanying the lieutenant's explanation, is in the northern part of British America. The map shows two volcanoes which, it is alleged, create the atmospheric disturbance, causing the tornadoes and waterspeuts. An elaborate system of ocean currents and air currens, resulting from these two volcanoes, is depicted upon the map. Their influence is explained by Lieutenant Coffiu in the following lucid style:

by Lieutenant Cofilu in the following lucid style:

"While living in the vicinity of the two volcances represented upon the accompanying map, I became positive of the source of water spouts; that they are generated by vacuum caused by the flame of volcances; the earth in its diurnal revolutions toward the east leaves the vacuum formed by volcances on this hemisphere hanging over the Pacific ocean, and the vacuums formed by volcances on the east-ern hemisphere are actual cause of all waterspouts, hurricanes, tornadoes and whirlwinds on the Atlantic ocean and coast. The accompanying map reresentsthe location of the magnet pole (about the latitude of the Arctic circle) and cause of the Gulf stream, viz.: the earth in its diurnal revolution causes the eastern hemisphere to depart from the Atlantic ocean, leaving a vacuum on the west coast of Europe and Africa; at the same time the east coast of Africa strikes against the Indian ocean, causing an immense volume of water to flow around the Cane of Good Hope. coast of Europe and Africa; at the same time the east coast of Africa strikes against the Indian ocean, causing an immense volume of water to flow around the Cape of Good Hope, which falls in the vacuum on the west coast of Africa, and in entering the vacuum acquires a course due north, which soon places it under the Tropic of Capricorn, and reaches the equator about the time when Cape St. Roque, on the northeast coast of South America, strikes it; from thence it follows the trendings of the coast, bores out the Caribbean sea and Gulf of Mexico, debouching into the Atlantic through the straits of Florida, where it is met by a portion of the same that flowed east of the island of Cuba; this strikes the volume as it comes from the straits of Florida, causing it to flow close to the coast of Florida, and in its turnings causes a deposit of the coarsest sediment thereby forming the Bahama banks; thence i follows the trending of the Atlantic coast opposite the Georges banks, where by doubling its width, it halves its velocity, which is the actual cause of the finer sediment of the Georges banks; from thence it continues north, striking the island of Newfoundland, and is nearly lost as a current after depositing the finest sediment of the Gulstream, which forms the grand banks, or banks of Newfoundland, although the stream is traced across the Atlantic to the Irish and British channels and is lost in the bay of Biscay, on the coast of France. The reason for the warm temperature of its waters is the fact that four-fifths of its length is detween the tropics of Cancer and Capricorn, absorbing caloric, and but one-fifth of its length is disbursing it."

COCHRAN, December 26 .- [Special.] -- Another shooting affair occurred at Cochran last evening. John Watts, a young man whose father lives in Cochran, shot W. T. Sanders, the ball striking him in the breast and passing just above the heart and out at the back. Another shotstruck Sanders's little son, who was standing by, in the mouth. The result of an old difficulty, no doubt influenced by Christmas whisky.

AMELIE RIVES'S PET. A Poor Little Newsboy Has a Streak of Good

Mobile, Ala., December 26.-[Special.]-The name of Amelie Rives is known to fame throughout the length and breadth of this broad country. The name of Larry McDonald is known country. The name of Larry McDonald is known only to the citizens of Mobile. The former the child of refinement, the gifted southern arthoress; the latter an Irish lad, a newsboy, with no particular claim to notoriety, unknown outside the confines of this city. Yet between these two, so dissimilar in every particular of birth, intellect and refinement, there existed a strange but strong friendship. Having had a slight knowledge of this iriendship at the time that Colonel Rives made his residence in this city, your correspondent recently sought en about the kindly feeling entertained for him by this now famous woman.

As soon as her name was mentioned Larry's eyes sparkled with delight, and the interviewer was himself interviewed. Larry had to be told everything the nawspaper man knew concerning Mrs. Rives-Chanele, Lefore he was able to get down to the subject matter of the interview.

"I do not know how I ever gut acquainted with her," said Larry in answer to a question. "She was mighty good and kind to me, and you bet I was awtil sorry when she went away from Mobile, One Christmas she sent for me to come up to her house, and I went. She made me eat dinner with her, and she gaye me a brand new sait of clothes, hat and she gave me a brand new suit of clothes, hat and shoes, besides two boxes of fine imported jelly—it was mighty nice and cost lots of money—and a ten dollar bill.

"She gave me money often, and when she left Mobile, gave me a $50 bill. I sent her a pretty basket of flowers that cost me $5 when she was leaving."

The youth spoke feelingly of his former friend, and-seemed delighted to hear that she had married a gentleman of wealth.

He said that once in a while he had received letters from her. These he had carefully treasured up, but some other newsboys robbed his trunk and the letters disappeared. "I wouldn't have cared for the other things they stole," he said, "if they had only let those letters alone. I wouldn't have taken $50 for them."

Can it not be possible that the young authoress was cultivating the acquaintance and friendship of this unutored boy as a character study, and that in some future work of fiction Larry McDonald, the Mobile newsboy, will be portrayed under a fictitious name?

THE LAW'S DELAY CAUSES THE PEOPLE TO TAKE CRIM-

INALS IN HAND. tors Never Brought to Trial-The Ac-

BIRMINGHAM, December 26 .- [Special.]-In the criminal history of the south for the past twenty years there is but one crime equaling in fleudish crueity the Hawes murders recently committed in this city. That crime was committed in Wake county, N. C., fifteen years ago. Scott Partin, a farmer, murdered his wife and only child, and to farmer, nurdered his wife, and only child, and to conceal the crime cut the bodies into small pieces and attempted to burn them. Failing in this, he placed the bloody pieces of flesh and bone in a tow sack and buried them in a marsh near his home. Partin owned a small farm in the southeastern part of the county. He had married a handsome and popular young lady, the daughter of a farmer living in the neighborhood, and to all outward appearances their domestic life was one of happiness. When their first child was about one year old the neighbors one day discovered that Mrs. Partin and the child were not at home. Partin explained that they had gone to visit relatives in Sampson county. This explaination was accepted and Partin went about his work as usual. A week passed before it was learned that Mrs. Partin had not been seen by her relatives in Sampson county. Then Partin was called on by her relatives to explain. He could not explain and immediately disappeared, and has never been captured. A week after Partin's disappearance the bodies of his wife and child were found. The excitement over the terrible affair did not die out for months, and a reward of $5,000 was offered by popular subscription for the capture of the murderer, in addition to large rewards by the state and county. Newspaper readers will remember the arrest, a few months ago, at Raleigh, N. C., of a man supposed to be Scott Partin, who proved to be Robert Leeson Porter, who was heir to a rich estate in freland. Porter was confined in prison in Raleigh until he became insane before his identity was fully established.

The crime of which Dick Hawes is accused, separate and alone from other causes, would not have provoked the advance on the fail, on that fatal Saturday night, which met such a bloody repulse. Many bloody crimes have recently been committed in this city and section and the rude gallows in the jail yard has been used only once since it was erected in the city and section and the rude gallows in the jail yard was erected. That crime was conceal the crime cut the bodies into small pieces while a few of the perpetrators of foul crime in this community have been promptly punished, there have been many trials which were a travestry on justice, and naturally afoused a fet lng of distrust in juries which could only be checked by a storm of lead as was done on that fatal Saturday night when the crowd advancing on the jail were fired on by Sheriff Smith and his deputies.

vancing on the jall were fired on by Sheriff Smith and his deputies.

Last January the city was shocked by the cowardly and brutal murder of John Leslie, a popular young lumber merchant. For three or four years before his death Leslie had been living with a young woman known as Sallie Boyd, and it was at her house that he was murdered. He was lying on the floor In frout of the fire and some one stealthily approached, entered the room and shot him twice through the head. Sallie Boyd and her nephew, a wild young man named Ben Smith, were arrested, charged with the crime. Binth soon broke down and confessed the crime. He said Sailie Boyd planned the murder and gave him the pistol with which the deed was committed. Last August Sailie Boyd was tried on a charge of murder. Ben Smith went on the witness stand and told the same story as he did at his first confession. The corroborating testimoney was of the strongest der. Ben Smith went on the witness stand and told the same story as he did at his first confession. The corroborating testimoney was of the strongest character, but the fair prisoner shed a few tears at proper intervals. Her lawyers used her beauty for all it was worth in their argument, and the jury, after leing out about thirty minutes, brought in a verdict of not guilty. Ben Smith, the self-confess elmurderer, has never had a trial.

Joe Beyers, colored, has been a prisoner in the county jail nearly two years on a charge of murder. Joe's wife had wandered from the straight and narrow path of virtue and ceased to love, honor and obey him. One morning he found her on a train bound for Atlanta, and by her side was John Boyd, a colored Lothario. Beyers advanced toward the couple with an open knife, and Boyd ran into the bagage car. Beyers pursued and overtaking him, plunged it e knife to his heart. Kilting rim Instantic. The bagagagemasier and a flagman were the only witnesses to the crime and it is doubtful if either one of them could be found today, so Joe stands an excellent chance of going free.

A year aro last summer John Rickles, a mining

A year ago last summer John Rickles, a mining expert, was walking along the main street of Iron-daic, a little town six miles from this city. Suddenly John T. Max well steepped from ast re with a double barrel shot gun. He fired the contents of both barrels into Rickles's back, and then, to make sure of his deadly work, walked up to the lallen man, placed a pistol to his head and shot his brains out. After a brief confinement in jail, Maxwell was released on a bond of $10,000 and soon afterward was appointed a deputy sheriff, which position he held for several months. He has never been tried for killing Rickles.

an engine on the same road. The absence of important witnesses or other reasons cause his trial to be continued from term to term of court.

In a cell at the county jail, separate and apart from other priseners, is Mahaley Burkley, a mulatto woman. It is two years or more since Mahaley, with a good sharp razor, carved for herself the proud utle of "Queen of Buzzard Roost." Through many hard fought and bloody conflicts she maintained her right to the title and no dance in the Roost was a compited success unless some one was carried away bleeding from a wound made by Mahaley with her little razor. One night about a year ago the pelice heard a shot at Mahaley's cabin and when they arrived they found a dead negro, a smoking pistol under the bed, and the "Queen of the Roost" ficeing away in the darkness. Walting the result of an appeal to the supreme court, on a motion for a change of venue, is the present status of Mahaley's case.

Dozens of cases of less atroclous crimes could be cited, when there has been great delay in the trial of the accused. Only a few days before the discovery of the Hawes mry len mystery. John Williams, a young man about town, was acquitted on the piea of insanity, of one of the most brutal and cowardly murders ever committed in the city.

It is not to be wondered at that the public had little or no confidence in the majesty of the law. Some fleudish crime like the Hawes murder was all that was needed to bring about an outburst of popular hadgmation.

"The criminal laws of Alabama are very defective," said Colonel D. S. Troy, one of the leading lawyers of the state, the other day. "To read them carefully, it would seem that they were framed by men who expected to be tried by them. The truth is, they were framed by lawyers, with a view of securing the acquittal of clients. These laws must be amended."

The republicans of this city have forwarded to President-elect Harrison an urgent invitation to Invitation.

The coroner's jury investigating the recent shooting at the jail, met today after a week's recess, and adjourned until tomorrow. The investigation has become monotonous even to the jury and they are anxious to bring it to a close. It is said the jury stand two for the acquitral of the officers, two for conviction, and two doubtful.

Tonight the dead body of an unknown white man was found on the railroad track near Ensley City. It is thought the man was murdered and his body placed on the track. This may develop into another sensational murder mystery. The coroner body placed on the track. This may develop into another sensational murder mystery. The coroner is now investigating the matter.

Later.—The dead man found at Ensley City tonight has been identified as James McCroery, a Scotch miner. He was subject to fits, and the supposition is that he fell in a fit on the railrcal, and was killed by a passing train.

W. S. Reese, mayor of Montgomery, to Mr. F. S. Dodds, of Birmingham, which took place at the St. John's Episcopal church at 6 o'clock this morning. Rev. Dr. H. Stringfellow officiated and a large congregation witnessed the beautiful ceremony.

Chattanooga, Tenn. SERIOUS CHARGE AGAINST A YOUNG LADY. CHATTANOOGA, December 26 .- [Special.]-Miss Kate Fretwell was arrested today on a charge of being the young lady who furnished fourteen prisoners in the county jall with two dozen saws to cut their way out yesterday morning. At the hearing it was proven beyond all question, that the accused had purchased the saws at two different hardware stores. She was also identified by the jailer as a frequent visitor at the jail. She was committed to jail in default of a heavy bond.

RALEIGH, December 26.—[Special.]—The state auditor today completed his list of rallways assessed for taxes. There are no less than fifty-one

SCROFULA

Is that impurity of the blood which produces unsightly lumps or swellings in the neck; which causes running sores on the arms, legs, or feet; which develops ulcers in the eyes, ears, or nose, often eausing blindness or deafness; which is the origin of pimples, cancerous growths, or "humors;" which, fastening upon the lungs, causes consumption and death. New Orleans, La

The Rate in the West Advanced-The New Chesapeake and Ohio Bridge-What the Railroad Boys Are Doing.

In a short talk yesterday, Major Calhoun, of the East and West railroad, a narrow gauge line running from Cartersville to Broken Arrow, Ala., said in regard to the future of the road:

"I believe that the road will be put in firstclass shape just as soon as it can be done. All the work now being done on the road is done with a view to broadening the gauge. Stan-dard gauge ties and trestle timbers are put in where repairs are made, and gradually the roadbed is being put in a condition such as that when the proper time comes the gauge may be broadened in a few hours. I believe, too, that it will be extended eastward to Gainesville, and westward to Birmingham. The Gaines-ville extension will tap the mineral country. pre-eminently of Georgia. The western extension if built to Birmingham, will give us a long straight haul that will be of vast benefit to shippers and profitable to ourselves. As matters now stand we take a car of ore or limestone and haul it, say, eighty miles. Then we transfer to the Georgia Pacific, which auls it thirty-five miles and charges almost as much as we do for our haul. The short connecting link between our line and the connecting link between our line and the Georgia Pacific runs nearly at right angles a distance of seven miles. This seven miles, if built in the direction of Birmingham, would cover over half the distance from Broken Arrow to that point. This illustrates what we would gain by building through. What it costs to transfer now would carry the freight into Birmingham. There is hardly five miles of the entire length of the road that has not a valuable deposit of mineral, slate or stone, and this is being developed to a remarkable degree. The business in this line has increased fully two hundred per cent during the present year. The demands on our shipping facilities are growing to such a remarkable extent that we are compelled to do something. I have just received propositions from three firms to load fifty cars per day each, and I can readily swell the bill to two hundred cars per day so soon as we can furnish the rolling stock.

For this, as well as the various other reasons,

For this, as well as the various other reasons, I am convinced that the road will soon be put on an equal footing with other roads, and will ecome a paying enterprise among the long st of prosperous southern lines."

General E. P. Alexander, Discusses Pools. General E. P. Alexander, president of the Central railroad, discusses railroad pools and pap rates in Scribner's for January.

He says: In the United States the railroads had largely reorted to pools before the interstate commerce law orbade them. The result of the law has generally en very advantageous to the best lines, which, under the pool, really paid a sort of blackmani to the poorer lines to maintain rates. If the penalties of the law can restrain such lines from rebating and under-billing, to be rid of the pool will be a great blessing to the well-locates roads. If not, then the week will be ablest, into consolidation for the roads will be driven into consolidation, for the end of fighting will be bankruptcy and sale. For-tunately consolidation has already gone so far in many sections of the country that the difficulties of abolishing rebates have been greatly reduced. And as far as it has gone it has proyed of much advantage both to the public and to the stockholders. Forumately, too, the other results attendant upon consolidation have been sufficiently demon-strated to remove any intelligent fear of extortion in rates or deterioration of service. Who would oday desire to undo the consolidations which have today desire to undo the consolidations which have built up the Pennsylvania rallroad or the New York Central, and call back to life the numberless small companies which preceded them? The country has outgrown such service as they could render, and the local growth and development along the lines of these consolidated companies certainly indicates improved conditions. In this connection, too, the improvement in cost and character of service is instructive. In 1865 the exceptor rate per founce mile on the principal cast.

average rate per ton per mile on the principal east-ern lines was about 2,900 cents; in 1887, it was 0.718 for a service twice as speedy and efficient. The New Rates in Effect. PITTIBURG, Pa., December 26 .- The new freight rates in pig iron go into effect next Tuesday on the lines of the Pennsylvania company. The new rate on pig iron in carloads is 15 cents per one hundred pounds, the old rate being 12½ cents. In less than car loads the rate is 17½ cents, the old rate being 25 cents. These are rates from Pittsburg to Chicago. From Shenandoah and Malnongahela rates are two cents less. He Has Eye Glasses. A new pair of elegant, gold-rimmed eye lasses were perched upon Mr. G. B. Manley's nose esterday. Given a Bigger Field. Captain W. T. Rogers has been appointed aveling passenger agent of the Nashville, Chatta-ooga and St. Louis railroad. He will have charge of the passenger business of the road in north Ala-bama, north Georgia, all of East Tennessee, western North Carolina and Virginia. This, as a matter of course, is a change that will keep Ciptain Rogers on the road nearly all the time, and it gives him a large field in which to spread his naturally "hustling" qualities.

Captain Rogers has been with the Nashville road the capacity of rassenger agent for ten years, and a that time has won a reputation as a worker of assenger business. In Chicago, merchants are condemning the inter-In Chicago, merenants are condemning the inter-tate commerce law.

Miss Lavinia Shannon, showed last night; that all the good things said about her are true. She is a beautiful woman and a very capable actress.

"The Mystery of Audley Court" gives this fair young actress ample opportunity to display her art. The play itself is too well known to require descriptions of the actress a worl tion; of the actress, a word.

She comes now as a star but having that greatest of advantages—a careful training under the direction of some of the leading actors of the day. This is an advantage which very many of the stars of today lack, and they show the lacking in their stage work. Miss Shannon, on the other hand, has youth and beauty, intelligence and training, all of which combine to make her a star of decided mag-

In the lighter scenes her art is delfeate. She seems to live the part thoroughly. Her laugh is one of that jolly, happy kind which captures her hearers and her grace is exquisite. As the action progresses she rises equal to the occasion, and then, notably in the fifth act, she is very strong. Miss Shannon is an actress of very decided ability, and as sure to reak an inversely wherever seen. and is sure to make an impression wherever seen. The supporting company is fair. Mr. W. P. said of it:

"One of the most hilariously amusing plays ever seen in Portland theater was Augustin Daly's comedy "A Night Off." presented last night, and to be repeated tonight. If the house is not crowded tonight it will be because the commendations of those who were present last night leave no impression on the minds of their friends, and many who enjoyed the play last night will be sure and supplement their pleasure again tonight. The audience was large and refined, just such a one as can enjoy the amusing situations thoroughly. Nothing we intensity funny, so rapid in action, so witty in dialogue, so charming in stage dress, so artistically represented that the same become said of it: dialogue, so charming in 'stage dress, so artistically metropolitan in every detail, has ever been pre-sented at the theater.

The only difficulty, I imagine, in the minds of your readers will be in trying to see what these things really have to do with the subject under discussion. The papal horrors of the middle ages, and a "spirituality" which consists in such a movement of the in the hope that our "chairman of the committee on education" will not live to see the day when the wonderful resources, desire development and that prosperity which can only come in large measure by abandoning the old time notion of free trade. They are resitess under democratic rule. They want honest elections, enlightened legislation, and it is to be hoped, cannot inuch longer be held to the support of the democratic organization.

"The race question has been all powerful in holding the white people, for the most part, solid for the democracy. I think many strong men of my state have come to the conclusion that sentiment as to that matter should no longer control. They begin to see that a division of the whites would result in a division of the colored people, and that negro domination is not so much to be feared. In this matter of protection of the internal revenue taxes they are in accord with the national republican platform, and it seems to me must soon allign themselves with and become republicans. I hope to see a break from the democratic party in the next state and congressional elections.

"When the break comes there will probaby be less question about fair elections, Then the best element of both races will act together in state and national election as as is now the case in many places in local and municipal elections.

"As to the ope a from of a national election law in the south, I think no such law would be of use, unless it was made to apply to the whole country, in overy state alike. Indeed, under the constitution, I don't see how will awapplying to a part of parts of the country could be enacted. "It congress should enact such a law I think it would be well, perhaps, as has been suggested to me, that the administration of the law be lodged in the United States Judges, and any violations of its provisions be made punishable in the United States courts—the judges to appoint boards of election commissioners for each congressional district, who should have power to appoint sub commissioners for caunties, perhaps these sub-commissioners to appoint managers of election. But there may be other methods more acceptable to the people and better calculated to answer the ends desired."

Cornbread for Europe. The produce exchange of New York is engaged in a movement which may turn out to be a philanthropic one. The purpose of the produce exchange is to arrange for a special exhibit of corn (or Indian maize, as it is called abroad), and its food products at the Paris exposition to be held next year, in order to give foreigners, who are starving on a diet of coarse rye bread. an idea of the cheap and palatable food that is within their reach.

The food product of corn is not only palatable, but delicate, and it is to be hoped that the exhibit of the produce exchange will cover all the varieties of food that can be made from corn meal. They ought to have on exhibition, the muffin, the battercake, egg-bread, the ashcake, the Virginia pone, the dumpling, and the hoecake. The sight of these things, as well as the taste, ought to be enough to tempt the palates of European epicures, to say nothing of the peasants who pay high prices for wheat bread, or subsist precariously on rye bread.

But there is one thing the produce exchange ought to remember, and that is that good results cannot be produced from steam-ground meal. If we are to show the effete monarchies of Europe our very best, It will not do to place on exhibition bread made from steam-ground meal. The process takes the life out of the corn, and kills the flavor. But bread made from waterground meal is fit for a king.

THERE is talk among the republicans of making Congressman McKinley secretary of But it is all talk. McKinley is too broad minded-too much of a statesman in fact-to be given any really important office by the Blaine party.

Concerning Style.

Professor Hill, a rhetorician of some re nown, has an article in the current number of Harper's Magazine, in which he takes the position that colloquial English has taken the place of the ornate style of the past generation. He sneers at rhetorical rules, and expresses his gratification at the prevailing tendency to return to the plain English of DeFoe and Swift.

So much has been written on this line of late that many young writers have jumped to the conclusion that writing is no longer an art, and that a jumble of words hastily fotted down will do as well as anything else. This is what they call a natural style-the colloquial English spoken of by Professor

It is needless to say that these youngsters make a very grave mistake. So long as people like glare and glitter, gay colors and picturesque effects, just so long they will delight in the word-pictures drawn by the masters of style. This is why thousands eagerly read Ingersoll's speeches and essays; why they read Ouida, Charles Egbert Craddock, Amelie Rives and the French ovelists-they want life and light and color in the sentences spread out before them on the printed page.

Perhaps the true secret of the fondness of many writers for colloquial English is to be found in their haste and carelessness. Any man can write plain English, but he cannot write it after the fashion of Bunyan, DeFoo and Swift without study and painstaking labor. The simplest words in our language may be so arranged that their rhythm and the pictures they suggest will linger in the memory of the reader, and on the other hand they may be thrown together in such a haphazard way that they will be nothing but jargon, read without interest and forgotten in a moment. The man who has the colloquial English craze should go slow, or his easy writing will prove very hard read-

GENERAL HARRISON announced Monday that he would hold no more receptions during the holiday season. Thereupon, everybody in Indianapolis and the surrounding country proceeded to call on him and take charge of his house.

Another Remedy.

J. Willis Menard, editor of the Southern Leader, a negro paper published at Jacksonville, Florida, has addressed a letter to Gen eral Harrison, the president-elect. It is not in the nature of a private letter, for a printed copy has been sent to THE CONSTITUTION. It is entitled "The Impending Crisis of the South," and is a very well written doc-

Editor Menard, who is a very intelligent and conservative representative of his race, says that the experience of twenty-five years shows that instead of assimilating in social and political interests, the two races are drifting farther apart from each other every year, and he adds that if every negro in the onth voted the democratic ticket, the whites would still oppose the policy of electing or appointing negroes to office.

Having delivered himself of this view, Editor Menard goes on to say that "it is a crime for any one to inspire such political hopes in the negro as cannot be realized. To promise him protection and a free ballot and then fulfil the hope with the harmless report of a congressional investigating comittee, is demagogism and not statesmanship." It is better, he says, "to bring the negro face to face with his sad fate and teach him the lessons of self-reliance and how best to surmount the obstacles in his pathway than to fill him with delusive

Editor Menard has a plan which he thinks is the only solution of the race problem. This remedy is the migration of a large portion of the negroes into the northwestern and southwestern sections of the union, the cost of transportation, a year's support, and a homestead to be furnished by the government. We believe this plan has been suggested and discussed before, but it is impossible to say whether it would solve the race problem.

It is true, as this colored editor says, that the condition of the negroes is worse, and that they encounter more violent prejudices in states or sections in which they concentrate in large numbers, or in which they equal or excel in numbers the white population. In Georgia, for instance, the conand status of the negro race are far superior to those of the race in that the manifestations of race prejudice are as ferocious at the north and among republicans as they have ever been at the south; and it is a serious question whether in migrating, the negroes would not jump from the frying-pan into the fire. In what way for instance, could a colored citizen of Georgia benefit himself by emigrating to the northwest or southwest? The only ills the Georgia negroes have to contend with are those of poverty, improvidence and ignorance. But the tax returns show that they are rapidly bettering their condition by saving money and accumulating property. Their education is also going on.

But the fact is also to be borne in mind

As we have said before, the race problem will settle itself, if the people of the north will consent to take it out of politics, where it has no proper place.

LITTLE Bill Chandler has offered a bill to suppress bribery at elections. The best remedy would be a bill to suppress Bill himself.

A Memphis Sensation.

"What devil has broken loose in Memphis?" is the question asked by the Memphis Appeal. Our sister city appears to have a White chapel fiend roaming about her streets. On three nights within ten days he has fired four shots through four windows, evidently with the intention of killing somebody, without any apparent motive.

The assassin made two attempts upon the life of Judge Pitkin Wright, firing at him through the transom over the door of his room in a hotel. The same man fired through the window of Mr. Tague's room, missing the heads of Tague and his wife by a few inches. He also paid his respects to a Mr. Seesel in a similar manner. On Christmas eve he fired through a window and killed little Mary Seagraves, who was asleep in bed at the time.

The local newspapers are satisfied that the same man committed all of these outrages, because each shot was fired from a pistol of a particular calibre. It is certain that the motive of the murderer was not robbery, and it was not revenge. He is supposed to have a homicidal mania, and the excited citizens of Memphis are under the impression that they have a veritable 'Jack the Ripper' in their midst.

It now remains to be seen whether the police of Memphis will be as slow and inefficient as their London contemporaries. A midnight skulker who makes it his business to sneak about shooting sleeping people should be suppressed at any cost.

WE observe in our exchanges a good deal about Noel and the yule log. This shows that the editors are bound to keep up with the procession.

That Summer Session.

THE CONSTITUTION has watched with nterest the controversy which has been gong on between some of our esteemed conemporaries, on the one side, approving a summer session of the legislature, and well known gentlemen on the other, who have endeavored to show the necessity of a continuation of the session for a longer time than the forty days "contemplated by the constitution.

We are of the opinion that the aforesaid distinguished gentlemen have gotten the best of our esteemed contemporaries, in the natter of argument.

The Augusta Evening News, one of th brightest and best evening papers published in this country, took occasion to say to the legislature, several days before its adjourn-

"The Georgia legislators are at their old tricks. well repudiate the constitution of the state an remain in session all the time. It matters not what a man's business or dis previous systematic habits may have been, it seems to be perfectly natural for the legislature to drop into the time-killing methods of the capital. There does not seem to be much cloquence afloat, and yet the hardworking representatives are busy introducing bills which never come to anything. Why can't the legislature get right down to business, and adjourn?"

With this the Hon. Wm. H. Fleming, who has the honor to represent, in part, the Evening News and the remainder of Richmond county, did not agree, and in reply wrote to the paper showing where in his opinion, it erred in the statement that the egislature was idling its time. This controversy was continued at length, but having juleted, it is presumed that its participants reached an agreement over the festive Christmas eggnog, or buried their difference in the exhaling aroma of turkey and sauce Mr. Fleming very aptly shows that "with the numerous judges and solicitors to elect, with the increasing population, business and wealth of the state, and the consequent needs for the charters for new town, new banks and new railroads; with the growing importance of many educational, commercial and political questions, the legislature of Georgia will never be able, under the present constitution, to perform all lits duties in forty days." The recent session of the legislature held forty-six days, and never did a legislature do better work. Its time was well occupied in the important business which came before it, from the first day of the session until the night of adjournment, and yet many important matters were not reached. Indeed, with the exception of the tax and appropriation bills, which were passed, the most important measures to be acted on could not be reached. The present mode of the local legislation is cumbersome and costly, and should be changed, as should be the manner of choosing the judges and solicitors. As it is, the legislature must consider all local measures brought before it, no matter how trivial, and it is this which consumes most of its time. Such legislation, or a greater part of it, should be left to the counties, and judicial officers should either be appointed by the governor, or elected by the people. When this is done, the legislature can transact its business in forty days. With the work that comes before it, as the law now requires, it can never get through in the "forty days contemplated by the constitution," but that authority, recognizing the increasing demand on the legislature, gave it the privilege of extending its session whenever two-thirds of its members deemed it necessary. As the vote for such extension was unanimous, it is hardly to be supposed that there was no necessity for such action.

THE New York Star suggests that General Harrison appoint Mr. Cleveland Dr. Lee says will be accepted as true concerning attorney general. The Star seems to have a blind belief in civil service reform under a republican administration.

Short Reply to Dr. Lee.

EDITORS CONSTITUTION: In your issue of Enforces Constitutions: In your issue of fonday morning Dr. Lee replies at length to my ecent article on the action of the North Georgia onference on the question of "six months public chools." While he acknowledges that the resolution which he offered, as chairman of the committee n education, did not pass, he represents me as aying that the "substitute" which did pass "emodied the sense of the original resolution." In his he is certainly mistaken. What I did say was, that while the principle at issue was not affected by the change in the form of the question, yet to many of the brethren, who were strongly opposed to a petition or memorial to the legislature, it seemed a very harmless affair." Instead of the substitute embodying "the sense of the original res olution" it utierly repudiated the one thing which it sought to accomplish—a petition from the con-ference to the legislature. It struck down its magna charter principle, for which Dr. Lee still contends, posed to public schools." But such is not the case. The conference, I suppose, stands teu to one for public schools. For fear, therefore, that they would be misunderstood, while not approving the principle involved, many voted for what they considered a very! harmless resolution of "sympathy." The effort made by the committee through its chairman, Dr. Lee, signally failed. The next time it will not even get a vote of "sympathy." I decline to be led away from the question in hand to consider the need of the thoroughter framework. consider the need of the thousands of ignorant children in the state. My heart and every power of my life is with them, We are all agreed that they ught to be educated. But the question at sue is as to whether an ecclesiastical body ought to attempt to influence legislation in a matter involving not only increased taxation, but increased taxation for the education of the negro children of the state. It is plain to us that it ought not. Our Methodist people are divided on both phazes of the question. We may call it pre-judice, and probably it is, but it iswidespread against levying any additional tax upon the people to educate the negro. Dr. Lee may think that the who opposed his resolution did so out of "respect to the theories and opinions of past ages," but it may turn out that they were wisely seeking to avoid the explosion of a mine of pre-eminently modern dynamite. As in the interview which followed The Constitution's editorial, so now

A Historic Picture.—Dr. J. A. Kenan, now of this city, who represented Baldwin county in the last legislature, has a remarkable picture in his rooms at the European hotel. It is a picture of Henry Clay, painted in twenty four hours, from life, and eyes as that they "must be ever kept in a fine phrenzy rolling," are certainly just as germain to this issue as are the "pots" and other "kitchen uten-sils" of the Jews. I am glad to know that the doclife size, by Wilson, in 1844. It was carried by Dr. Kenan's father, Colonel A. H. Kenan, from Mil-ledgeville to Madison, on the occasion of the great barbeene in 1844. The picture is true to life, even the slightly torn shirt collar being delineated per-fectly. In a corner of the picture are the words, "Constitution" and "Compromise," near a spray of wintergreen under his right hand. On account of the press of urgent business and lack of time I did not present it at the present session. I have been gathering statistics on the subject for several months and hope to show the members of the legislature the necessity of such an institution in order that we may keep pace with the progress of the age in other states. The property owned py the state known as "Indian Springs," is the most valuable water for nervous complaints in the south except Hot Springs, Arkansas. Another remark just here may not be amiss. The lea of sending a man with shattered nerves and rocken constitution to a piace surrounded by lunaics and maniaes to be cured of nervous prostration s, to my mind, to say the least of it, a very questionable way of securing the end sought to be accomplished. A person suffering the tortures of the familied, called "mania potu," should be sent where the mind could rest and physical nature could be built up by daily exercises of a pleasant nature, untraumheled by unpleasant and unhappy surroundings. I opposed the sale or lease of the property on several grounds as well as on the lima above mentioned, and the cemmittee did me the honor of postponing action till the summer session to give time for me to introduce my bill to erect a home for the inebriates at Indian Spring. A majority of the committee sanctioned my views on the subject and will aid me in consummating the matter next summer. I am truly glad to see the question put before the public, and do hope that my humble efforts in this behalf will bring forth good fruit, which I feel assured of, if I can only have the aid and active co-operation of all the good people in the state, who feel, as I do, a deep and profound interest in all who are struggling in the wire and slums of an uncontrollable appetite. The Pekin Gazette says: "The following case, which is reported by the highest authorities of the Hu Kuang provinces, has been under judicial investigation for some time past, and its final settlement is now reperted. The principal parties to it were She-Yun-shan, a man who kept a drapery establishment at a place called Jen-ho, in the Kung-an district, and two persons named Chang Tsumao and Chang Ming-la, father and son, who carried on a trade in firewood. About the middle of last year the latter -purchased the trees of a small wood in the Chiang-ling district, and went with a number of their servants to cut them down and convert them into firewood. They then hired a boat belonging to a Chung-king man to convey the products to the Kung-an district, where they heard there was a prospect of a high market for it. One night, shortly after their arrival at that place, the drapery establishment of She Yunshan was attacked by robbers and completely riffed, the proprietor himself and his wife being wounded in the struggle with the assailants. The robbers were pursued by the village police, but proprietor himself and his wife being wounded in the struggle with the assailants. When he brought them before the magistrate he charged them with piracy and falsely alleged that he found the stolen goods on board the boat. The accused, having refused to confess, were beaten and tortured, and in the end one or two of them, dreading further torture, said that they had agreed with Chang Tsu-mao and his son to rob the house, but were not present at the commission of the deed. Chang Tsu-mao and his son were again brought before the magistrate and were exposed once more to torture, but they still firmly adhered to the declaration of their innocence. Both men died under the ordeal, and the wife of the former instituted proceedings against all the parties responsible for the death of her husband and son.

proceedings against all the parties responsible for the death of her husband and son.

The magistrate was at once removed from office and degraded, and a full investigation of the whole circumstances was held in the provincial capital, with the result that the innocence of the six men was completely established. The blows, it was proved, were administered on the usual places, the buttocks and legs, and no illegal torture was used. The law is that any one who falsely accuses an innocent person, and thereby causes his death, is to suffer strangulation after the usual period of confinement. In the present instance, although the immediate cause of death was torture, still, as the torture was the consequence of the false accusation, She Yun-shan has been convicted under the above provision of the law. The magistrate is to be banished for his careless management of the case; the policemen who made the arrest and the Yamen underlings, who only carried out the law in the usual way, are exonerated from all blame, and a fresh search is to be made for the actual robbers.

The Pelsin Gazette says: "The following case, which is reported by the highest authorities of the Hu Kuang provinces, has been under judicial investigation for some time past, and its final settlement is now reperted. The principal parties to it were She-Yun-shan, a man who kept a drapery establishment at a place called Jen-ho, in the Kung-an district, and two persons named Chang Tsumao and Chang Ming-la, father and son, who carried on a trade in irewood. About the middle of last year the latter purchased the trees of a small wood in the Chiang-ling district, and went with a number of their servants to cut them down and convert them into firewood. They then hired a boat belonging to a Chungking man to convey the products to the Kung-an district, where they heard there was a prospect of a high market for it. Next morning She Yun-shan instituted a Search for the property and found five bales of cloth, part of the plunder, at a place not far from where Chang Tsu-mao's boat was anchored, and his suspicion having fallen on its six occupants, he called in the aid of the police and had them at once arrested. When he brought them before the magistrate he charged them with piracy and falsely alleged that he found the stolen goods on board the boat. The accused, having refused to confess, were beaten and tortured, and in the end one or two of them, dreading further torture, said that they had agreed with Chang Tsu-mao and his son to rob the house, but were not present at the commission of the deed. Chang Tsu-mao and his son were again brought before the magistrate and were exposed once more to torture, but they still firmly adhered to the declaration of their innocence. Both men died under the ordeal, and the wife of the former instituted proceedings against all the parties responsible for the death of her husband and son.

The magistrate was at once removed from office and degraded, and a full investigation of the whole circumstances was held in the provincial capital, with the result that the innocence of the six men was completely established. The blows, it was proved, were ad-

On Monday afternoon Mr. N. C. Spence, the Decatur street carriage-maker, shut down his works a half hour before the time for leaving, and invited all of his employees to his house near by, where an elegant banguet was served. Mr. Spence, in a short steech thanked the men for the interest they had taken in his work for the past year, and the men in turn expressed, in a few appropriate remarks their high appreciation of the many courtesies they had received at the hands of their employer. After some music by Miss spence and Professor Lilly, the party disbanded.

One of the handsomest presents given this Christmas was that given by the boarders of the Graut House to Mrs. Archer. SOCIAL PROBLEMS IN AMERICA. Changes in the National Character Caused by the Influx of Foreigners. From the Fortnightly Review.

One grave evil has been the loose and perfunctory methods of neutralization. The rules of acquiring citizenship and the preliminary term of residence fixed for alleus vary in different states, but in nearly all the process by which foreigners can be transmitted into Americans, with all the rights and privileges of voters, is extremely easy an expeditious. In some states, and notably in that of New York, the short residential term is evaded, and false declarations are made by the hundreds for and false declarations are made by the hundreds for the sake of manufacturing voters for party purposes. This is more easily done in large cities than in the country districts, where people are known, but the modern endency, as in the old world, is to aggregate into cities. What will be the national character of America fifty or even twenty years hence? Will these heterogeneous elements of population weld into cup homogeneous whole? Nearly one-third of the people are foreign born. How far will these affect the original stock? England has passed through a similar process, but on a much smaller. through a similar process, but on a much smaller scale, and spread over a thousand years. The United States have been absorbing—have they as-similated?—for a generation, year by year, as many people as form an average German principality; and these settlers have increased and multiplied. There are nearly twice as many Irish in America as in Ireland. In some states the Teutonic element preponderates. Wisconsin has a large Helvetian settlement, and Minnesota is a favorite resort of Scandinavians. The character of New England has already undergone a marked change. The Puritan character no longer prevails. Farms that had been owned and titled for generations by descendants of the original settlers are now in many cases in the hands of Germans. The mill hands of Massachuts. Rhode Island and Maine are largely recruited by French Canadians. Out of nearly 500,000 in-habitants of Boston almost one-fourth are Irish. Young New England has gone west. Whether its historic sturdy character will be impressed upon historic study character will be impressed upon those nascent states remains to be seen. The cheer-ful optimism that is so characteristic of the people believes, or hopes, that the common school system will adjust all such matters. The report on the last will adjust at such materials. The proportion is a second of the population were resident in cities of 8,000 and upward. In 1883 the droportion had grown to nearly one-fourth. At the former period there were only six such cities in the United States, but now there, are made from a walnut tree which her husband had such cities in the United States, but now there, are 236. Human nature is becoming more and more gregarious, Rural hie is viewed with aversion. People like the bustle and excitement of towns, even though the struggle for existence is intensified and though an unknown number are crowded out and pressed down in the conflict. In all the prinpal cities there are thousands who might improve heir condition by going into the country, where the supply of labor falls far short of the demand.

sive Oatimeal, Flour and Sugar.

From the New York Sun.

"It's all nonsense," said Dr. Charles Perry, the pharmaceutical expert, "to say that the two explosions in Chicago this week were caused by dynamite or bursting boilers. They were caused by dust and only dust. The public doesn't seem to realize that the dust of any vegetable substance which will have will expect when mixed with air. which will burn will explode when mixed with air, but every chemist knows it to his sorrow. If you blew your gas out- and go away, you know that when you come back and strike a match there's going to be an explosion of the mixed gas and air. You also know that if you put a lighted match in an empty benzine or naphtha barrel, when a little of the liquid is left, you are pretty sure to have the barrel disappear in small pieces and find your self in the next lot. The same rule applies to any fine dust which ear, he haved early which her self in the next lot. The same rule applies to any fine dust which can be burned and which, by reason of its fineness, can be suspended in the atmosphere. Here's a large tin can. I throw into it a teaspoouful of powdre de riz and a pinch of lycopodium. I shake it until the can is full of dust laden air and touch a match to it. Off it goes, and, ouch! I burn my hand in showing the fact. With gas it takes about eight times as much air as gas to make a good blow up. With dust the proportion is about the same.

about the same.
"The last explosion in Chicago was occasioned by oatmeal, which is, I think, the first time that Scot land's gastronomic mainstay has behaved so badly. Flour has a much wickeder record. It blew a greamill in Minneapolis all to pieces; it made a first-class wreck of a building in Hamilton avenue, Brooklyn; week of a building in Hamilton avenue, Brooklyn; it knocked out the Jewells' establishment at Fulton ferry in that city, and it has ruined I don't know how many other places."

"Flour isn't alone," contined Dr. Perry, "in this property. Powdered sugar cleaned out a huge store in Cortlandt street only a few years since, Pulverized coccanut shells came near burning up a seven-story building in West Broadway. Druggrinding mills are frequently the scenes of such grinding mills are frequently the scenes of such explosions. Palut mills, which reduce lampblank and similar pigments to a dust, run milar risk Bakers are ever within an ace of being blown into eternity by the dust of starch, flour and sugar. Fine eternity by the dust of starch, flour and sugar. Fine sawdust is apt to indulge in the same pyrotechnic display. Wood turners and finishers are always on the alert for accidents of this sort. Even in ectton, linen and wooden mills the fine lint which fills the air of every room is lisble to ignite, and, if the proportion of air to lint is right, to explode with more or less force. Lazy housekeepers who do not clean their furniture, but allow the dust to accumulate, run the risk of an explosion when, in a nt of reform, they vigorously sweep a close room in the night time with the gas lit.

NEW YORK, December 26-Hubbard, Price & Co., in their cotton circular to-day, say: Being again without foreign advices, the market has remained very inactive, and fluctuations were without moment. The liquidation of wheat speculation in Chicago, with enormous losses to bull operators, has had a tendency to restrict new operations in cot ton and it seems likely that the market will develop few features of interest until after holiday week.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Features of the Speculative Movement in Grain and Provisions.

CHICAGO, December 26.—A weak and heavy feeling existed in wheat, prices declining 5%e below closing figures of Monday and closed 5%e lower. All markers were in pretty much the same weak and demoralized condition. As prices declined, long wheat came upon the market and speculative offerings were very heavy. Part of the wheat was brought out by exhaustion or margins, and there were no doubt a good deal of wheat closed out by parties who did not seek indications ahead for any immediate turn for the better in the market. The opening was about 3/421c lower than Saturday's closing, and soon declined 1/40 more, then beld spell occurred, prices declining to 2½°c. The de-cline was very rapid, the feeling panies, and it was almost impossible to execute orders at times when the market was most excited at limit given. From $1.02½ for May the inside figures reached prices, rallied it very sharply, again eased off, and closed %c lower than the close Saturday. Corn ruled quiet and firm, closing %c@%c higher than Saturday.

Oats were weak, dull, closing 1/4c lower. Pork was easter and sold down 33 111/2c from the opening. Prices recovered 2/265c, and the market closed quiet and steady. Lard was more active and closed steady, 15@17½c lower.

Short ribs were active and closed 16@12½c low The following was the rauge in the leading futu

The Petroleum Market. NEW YORK, December 26—The petroleum mar-net opened firm at 50c, but there was no demand, near that price and on an execution of selling orders from the west the market broke and declined to 88%.

A slight rally then occurred, but the price dropped again, and the market closed weak at 88%.

room for improvement in the manner of carrying them on. I believe it would be a good idea for Atlanta to follow the example of New York city in the matter of holding her elections. She ought to have at least double elections. She cannot be have at least double the number of precints, say two in each ward—with only a few hundred voters registered at each precinct, and the crowd should not be allowed to go nearer than about one hundred feet to any precinct. The voters could then walk up to the polls one by one, deposit their bailots and go on about their business. A system like this would be fair and tend to prevent fraud. An illegal voter could be easily spotted by his neighbors, and there would be no pulling and tugging at voters by the friends of the various candidates and showing them right up to the polls. If a city executive committee could be secured which would carry out a system like the one suggested, it would greatly simplify elections in Atlanta and prove a blessing to the politics of the city."

Mr. Levi Wells, who was present, remarked:

"What Mr. Dodd has said is on the right line. We should have a good organization, and a first-class city executive committee. As it is our city elections are not properly cenducted. Everybody recognizes that fact. I think, however, that there should be about fifteen or sixteen voting places in the city. It would not hurt to have about three in the first ward, arranged to suit the convenience of the voters. There are about two thousand voters in the first ward and all of them are compelled under the present system to cast their ballots at one precinct. The result is that a good many people don't vote at all. Many of them would have to leave their business and go long distances to vote and a number of old and feeblemen do not feel able to stand in line for several hours, and be pushed from front and rear. With three precincts in that ward, the vote over there could be easily and pleasantly cast, because only a few hundred would vote at each precinct.

It would give everybody a chance to vote without much trouble, and would make the counting of the votes easier and more rapid. "I think," said he, "that now is the time to call a mass meeting of citizens and appoint a city executive committee under whose direction primaries in city elections should be held in future. Now is the time to organize and heal the dissentions in the democratic ranks. It is the more opportune in view of the well known fact that there is fear of disorganization in the air. Thorough organization in Atlanta and a good city executive committee will cement the democratic party in this city—give us a pure ballot and do away with back room caucuses. If the present system—I mean lack of system—of conducting elections in Atlanta is continued the result will be that, after awhile, good men cannot be prevailed upon to run for mayor and council because of the methods of electioneering, the unseemly scramble for these positions, and the heavy personal expeuse entailed.

"I believe that the time is ripe for a massmeeting to be called to appoint an executive committee of, say, eighteen of our very best citizens, two from each ward, and six from the city at large, to revolutionize the present lax

STORIES ABOUT JUMBO.

P. H. Snook threw himself into an easy chair upon the sidewark yesterday in front of his store, saying,

"Do you know that I haven't bought a Christmas-turkey in five years?"
"Bon't you like the meat?" asked the furniture dealer's friend. "Oh yes; in fact, I like turkey better than any thing, except 'possum and pig."
"And still you haven't had a Christmas turkey in five years?"

"I didn't say that. I said I hadn't bought one in "I didn't say that. I said I hadn't bought one in five years. For five years Henshaw & Son, the biggest chair manufacturers in Ciucinnati, have sent me a turkey for Christmas dinner. They always send a fine one, too, and this year my turkey weighed just thirty-nine pounds. We'll have turkey all this week, and we like it as well as Jumbo Hunter does."

Mr. Jim Hunter, the well known insurance adjuster is med, and it is against Jumbo Hunter his anger is directed.

The names are alike but the two are no kin. The names are alike but the two are no kin. On Christmas day Mr. Hunter was shooting a freeracker. Just in froat of him Jumbo was standing. Mr. Hunter did not know the policeman. Jumbo watched the gentleman until he put the match to the cracker and then turned his optics upon the Christmas adjunct as it flew through the sir. He watched it until it exploded and then walked up to Mr. Hunter saving: Mr. Hunter, saying:

"I want your name, please,"
Some of Mr. Hunter's friends recognized Jumbo and began laughing. One said: "Jim, Jumbo has got you."

Almost instantly Mr. Hunter realized that he was ace to face with the famous Jumbo, and as his tuees began to tremble, he asked: "What do you want wi h my name?" "To make a case against you," answered Jumbo without a smile. "On, you be hanged," said Mr. Hunter.

Jumbo did hang. He hung on to Mr. Hunter intil he made a case against him.

A bright five-year old boy was given a military cap and a jacket trimmed with lace on Christmas morning. Later in the day the child's father oftered to take him up town. The little fellow agreed to go, but as he "Wait papa, until I take off this coat and cap."

"No, son, wear them," said the father.
"Oh, I can't do that," answered the lad.
"And why?"
"'Cause Jumbo might get me."

There is a new brand of matches in Atlanta-The are called the Jumbo matches. A small boy walked in Daus's saloon yesterday, saying: "Have some Jumbo matches? Five boxes for Daus took a box and after looking at it asked:

"Why do you call 'em Jumbo matches?"
"'Cause that's the name. Every time you strike one you find a case against you. There ain't any turkeys in the boxes, though." Daus invested a dime in the matches.

About eight o'clock last night a well dressed young woman stepped into the office at police headquarters.

"I want to see the chief," said she.

"Well," said the chief.
"I want two men arrested for cursing me on the street," she said excitedly. "I told some officers about it and they wouldn't make the case."

'What's the matter?"

"They insulted me there on the streets and then again up there in the Salvation Army hall. I want them arrested."

Two officers were sent with her to the Salvation Army hall and when they got back to the station Dick Catley and dule Cross were with them. were with them.

were with them.

"Weil, sir," remarked Catley, in a disgusted tone. "my wife is gone crazy again."

"What's the matter?" he was asked.

"She's gone back to the Salvation Army and had me arrested again."

The young man went on to tell a story that is just as old in Atlanta as the Salvation Army itself. His young wife deserted him for the army and their home has been broken up since. They live together awhile and then separate. She has had him arrested a time or two before. They have been separated for about seven weeks now and he happened to see her in company with another man last night at the artesian well. During the afternoon three or four telephone messages came to police headquarters in reg.rl to a dog that was running about the streets snapping at people and supposed to be mad.

The first message came from out near the East Tennessee shops. A negro child was bitten by a dog, and the darkies in the neighborhood were excited. It was thought that the deg was mad and a chase was made, but the deg casped.

Half an hour later another message came in from Capitol avenue. The dog was running down the street and thought to be mad. From the descriptions given there is no doubt that the dog at the shops and the one on Capitol avenue were the same.

Mr. Long was bitten about 6 o'clock at the Pryor street crossing at the union depot. He was walking along home when he felt a stinging sensation in the calf of his leg, and looking down saw a little dog pass on by. The dog's tengue was hanging out and he was foaming at the mouth. Cure of Pneumonmonia.

William A. Lawyer, Hess Road, Niagara Co., N. Y., says: "About a year ago I was taken with a severe pain in both lungs. I was first attacked with a severe chill, then a dreadful pain and then a cough accompanied by considerable fever. It looked very much like a bad attack of pneumonia. A friend of mine procured five ALL-COCK'S PLASTERS. One he put under each arm, one under each shoulder blade, and one on my chest close around my throat. In a few hours the cough ceased, the pain gradually abated and I broke out in a profuse perspiration. I fell in a profound sleep, and the next day was almost well. I wore the Plasters eight days afterwards, and have never had any trouble since."

MR. JERE HOLLIS, Macon, Ga., says: For twenty-one years! have been afflicted with severe headaches caused by pressure of blood on the optic nerve, and could not get relief from anything until I tried Bradycrotine.

No Pains or Detention From Business.

The old regular treatment for Piles required chlo roform, streetching of the sphincter muscles, and drawing down the tumors with hooks, when either the knife, ligature, clamp, cautery iron, screw crusher or dangerous caustics are used to remove them, the operation lasting an hour or more. Pow-riuloplates are then administered to ease the pain, compelling the patient to remain in bed for two or three weeks, with danger from second rhage, liability to ulceration, stricture and fistula, and much suffering during a protracted rec

MORE CABINET TALK. A STORY THAT SHERMAN WILL FIX

THE SLATE. BLAINE AND QUAY TO BE SNUBBED Wharton Barker Has a Finger in the Pie-

A Talk With Congressman Thompson, of Ohio, on the Situation WASHINGTON, December 27 .- [Special.]-News comes from Albany, N. Y., quoting some one, who is supposed to know it all, for a story of Mr. Harrison's nominations, the argument of which is that neither Mr. Blaine, nor Mr. Quay will have influence with Mr. Harrison in the matter of making up his cabinet. The conclusion is that Mr. Blaine, Mr. Quay, Mr. Wanamaker and Mr. Platt, are going to to be left out of the cabinet, and that Mr. Sherman and Mr. Wharton Barker are to be all powerful with the new administrate The story told of the nomination is that Wharton Barker first brought about an agree ment between the Harrison and the Blaine men that the Blaine strength was to go to the Indiana candidate, but that the Harrison folks discovered a purpose on the part of Elkins, Platt and company to bring about the nomination of Blaine. Thereupon Wharton Barker saw John Sherman in Washington the day before the nomination and reached an agreement with him, the terms of which are thus described: If Harrison on the first ballot on Monday should suffer a decided loss, and Sherman should gain, the Harrison phalanx should march bodily over to the camp of the Ohio statesman. If, on the other hand, the gains should be Harrison's and the defection from Sherman, the latter was to throw his entire strength to the Indiana candidate. In no case was the nomination of Blaine, or of dark horse, to be permitted. Senator Allison called later in the day and entered heartily into the agreement. This agreement settled the nomination. The lieutenants of the three candidates were instructed by telegraph what to do, and the plan worked like a charm the

It is further pointed out that the sympathies of Mr. Harrison are with Mr. Sherman and antagonistic to Blaine Congressman Thompson, of Ohio, who of Senator Sherman's 'gillies," sometimes called managers, said to

"I know exactly what Mr. Sherman's plans and expectations were up to the last. He wanted the nomination himself and never entered into any agreement with Mr. Harrise or any one else, such as described. I may tell what I know of the matter; but it is too early to do so now. I have only to say that on Men day morning Mr. Sherman and his friends fel no doubt of his nomination. Up to the third ballot we thought Sherman safe. Then the California Blaine men thought they saw Har rison's nomination before them. They has tened to get under cover. That rush of the Blaine men made Harrison's nomination certain. Mr. Sherman never traded to assist any man but himself to the nomination, but I can any that he was not sorry that it was Harrison and not another who got the nomination."

Bids were opened today by the supervisor ar chitect of the treasury for the enlargement of the custom house building at Atlanta, Ga, The bidders were all of Washington. They were as follows: Thomas and Driscoll, $86,500 time to complete the work, twenty months the Maine Granite and Improvement com pany, $95,927; time eighteen months; Lane & Melnote, $93,130; time fifteen months; McCarthy & Baldwin, two bids, one $91,982 and the other $82,383: time eighteen months

HARRISON'S INAUGURATION. Only a Few Carriages to Be Allowed in the Procession-The Cowboys.

ASHINGTON, December 27.-Ch Button, of the inaugural committee, it has been practically determined to have no carriages in the procession except those for the occupancy of the retiring and incoming presidents, the new vice-president and the joint congressional committee.

John C. Dougherty, secretary of the notifica-tion committee which informed Harrison and Morton of their nomination, has written here that at least one-half of the forty-seven members of the committee will be at the inauguration and that they would like a place in the line reserved for their carriages. Mr. Button says that on account of the great length of the parade it will be impracticable to allow memhers of the committee to ride in the procession and also that no place in line can be given to any persons until about a week before the 4th of March, when the marshal will make an assignment of positions to various organizations that will be represented. Word has been rethat will be represented. Word has been re-ceived from Colorado that one hundred cow-boys and a band will leave Denver to take part in the parado. They will be dressed in the characteristic style of the plains and will travel under the name of "The Harrison and Morton Club of Marching Cowboys." The fifth Mary-land regiment has also signified its intention to take part in the inaugural ceremonies.

CHRISTMAS AT THE WHITE HOUSE.

Presents for Mrs. Cleveland from All Parts of the Union.

Washington, December 27.—Christmas Day at the white house passed off pleasantly, the president and Mrs. Cleveland remaining at home nearly all day. Mrs. Cleveland entered into the spirit of the Christmas season in truly New England style, and gave her personal supervision to the stocking of the executive pantry with those seasonable articles calcutated to bring good cheer and comfort to all well regulated households. The private dining room and the private appartments unstains were festooned with evergeens and holly, and at the windows were the conventional laurel wreaths. Up to a late hour last night express packages and parcels delivered by messengers poured in at the front door for the president and his wife. They received Christmas remembrances from every section of the country, and when they were all spread out in Mrs. I Cleveland's boucloir, the apartment might have been easily mistaken for a combination store, so varied was the assertment of in Mrs. [Cleveland's boudoir, the apartment might have been easily mistaken for a combination store, so varied was the assortment of gifts. One of the most showy presents was an onyx and gold toilet stand for Mrs. Cleveland. Jowelry, silverware, canes, umbrellas, fancy articles, handtwork of intimate friends, cigars, wines and packages of every description were displayed to the best advantage and witnessed by a few personal friends who called this morning to extend their Christmas greetings and also to make additions to the collection. Mrs. Cleveland enacted the role of Santa Claus among the household servants, and each one was liberally remembered by their charming young mistress. To some she gave useful articles and to others she gave sums of money. The president also remembered the men servants with moneyed gifts.

Wool Men Want More Protection. St. Louis, December 27.—The wool growers of Kimble, Menard, Sutton and Schleicher counties, of Texas, at a meeting held yesterday adopted resolutions urging congress to so amend the present tariff as to prevent the importation of foreign wool under the names of ring waste, thread waste, yarn waste, which are now used to evade tariff duty, declaring that it is largely due to these fraudulent importations.
